MICRONESIAN EDUCATOR (#28)

Expected publication date: July 2020 (hard copies as well as online)

Submissions: December 31, 2019 (1st deadline) & January 31, 2020 (2nd deadline)

Micronesian Educator (a journal of the School of Education at the University of Guam) publishes scholarly articles that come from a wide range of areas of educational research and related disciplines. The journal serves as a forum to share empirical findings, literature reviews, theoretical perspectives, and practical applications in such areas.

- » Research paper (qualitative, quantitative, or mixed)
- » Essays in theory and philosophy of education
- » Position paper
- » Opinion paper
- » Action research (by faculty and graduate students)
- » Creative writing (poetry, fiction, and personal essays)
- » Book review
- » Teaching note

For this issue (#28), Micronesian Educator especially seeks papers that address student success, academic performance, or student engagement in higher education. Papers from a wide range of formats—including reports of research, descriptions of innovative teaching practices, and new empirical findings—will be considered.
